WELCOME TO THE NEIGHBORHOOD | WOLF PACK CHORUS | NOW OPEN!

A new concept -- Wolf Pack Chorus, owned and operated by Chef Chris Wolf and his wife Katie -- is taking over the former Club Isabella space in on Cornell Road in Cleveland's University Circle neighborhood, with an opening date set for late January, early February. Envisioned as approachable fine dining, the 100-seat restaurant sits where the University Hospitals campus meets Little Italy. Despite the neighborhood, it will not be an Italian restaurant.

"This area is dying for new restaurants, new ideas, and hipper vibes," says Wolf. "We are taking a space that already has great bones, that was once a 'go-to' dining destination in Cleveland, and we're giving it new life; with an electric yet elegant feel, approachable menu, recognizable favorites, and a high standard of service."

Among the reasons for the name is the purpose of a Wolf Pack Chorus. The chorus is when wolves howl to alert others in their pack that food is available. Chef Wolf hopes howls of gastronomic joy will start with a late January/early February opening.

Wolf, who bought the space in July, has a history in country clubs and resorts, most recently as chef at the Shaker Heights Country Club in Shaker Heights and in the kitchen at The Country Club in Pepper Pike. "I didn't think I'd ever leave country club life," muses Wolf. Then, something changes. He says, "I'm 41, now's the time to do it."

Wolf started in the hospitality business when he was just 10 years old. His mom Patti took him to her job at The Italian Café on Van Aken Boulevard in Shaker Heights. "I grew up at the Italian Café doing everything," says Wolf.
